

Leave XM and other satellite radio providers alone. If they fail, let them fail on their own as a FREE MARKET should. They are providing a service to their listeners which helps not only their subscribers but also might make the other non-satellite programmers listen up and make their product better.